

Brief Profile

Muhammad Nizam Awang holds joint positions as Senior Lecturer in Law at Faculty of Syariah and Law and Deputy Director of the Institute of Halal Research and Management (IHRAM) at Universiti Sains Islam Malaysia. He has been widely engaged as an expert in the areas of halal and nanotechnology consulting, research and training. His current projects examine the governance of laboratory services and human resources in the Halal industry; and the implication of chemicals and occupational health regulations for nano-scale substance and workplace exposure. Muhammad holds a PhD in Nanotechnology Law and Policy from Brunel University, and graduated with a LLB, LLM and Diploma in Judicial Administration and Syariah Legal Practice from Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia.